PART I

SAN FRANCISCO

1. San Francisco Bay Area

San Francisco, the seat of the United Nations Conference on International Organization, is centrally located on the west coast of the United States at a point where the coastal range of mountains is broken to give access to the great central valley of California. The city occupies the tip of the southern thumb of the twin peninsulas which enclose the great land-locked harbor of San Francisco Bay. The Golden Gate channel separates the two peninsulas and connects the waters of the bay with the Pacific Ocean.

The hills upon which the city is built form the western rim of a huge bowl known as the Bay Area. The shores of the bay are dotted with wharves, warehouses, shipyards, and industrial areas. Above, on the lower slopes and foothills of the mountains, are the cities and residential areas of metropolitan San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Leandro, Hayward, Sausalito, Petaluma, San Rafael, San Anselmo, Vallejo, Richmond, San Jose, Santa Clara, Palo Alto, Redwood City, San Carlos, Belmont, San Mateo, Burlingame, South San Francisco, and San Bruno.

The city is almost entirely surrounded by water and was formerly served principally by ferries. In recent years, however, it has been linked with the mainland on the north by the Golden Gate Bridge and on the east by the 8-mile stretch of the Oakland Bridge. The population of the city proper is only three-fourths of a million persons, but the number in the entire Bay Area is more than double this figure. The whole area now forms one unified metropolitan community.

San Francisco is a great financial, banking, marketing, communication, and transportation center of the west coast. The Federal Government and most large commercial and industrial concerns have branch offices here. The city is also a western headquarters for the Army and Navy. The Bay Area is a terminus for 3 transcontinental railway systems and in normal times a port of call for 177 steamship lines. The normal industrial activities have been tremendously stimulated in recent years by defense manufacturing and use as a supply base for the war in the Pacific.

2. Climate

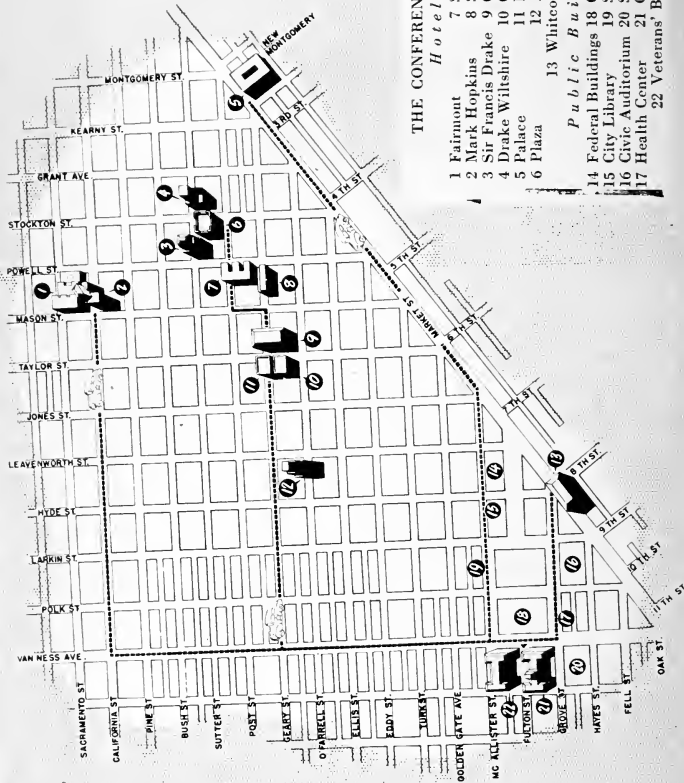

San Francisco is favored with a mild yet invigorating climate which is "warm in winter, cool in summer." The average yearly temperature is 56 degrees with a normal variation of only 10 to 20 degrees between winter and summer. The climate is so evenly balanced that all types of vegetation, including many delicate tropical plants, flourish throughout the year.

The temperature during late April and May, when the Conference will be in session, averages about 57 degrees. The nights are cool and a light topcoat will be needed. April is normally very clear and there is practically no rain from May to the end of October.

3. Scenic and Other Attractions

The country around San Francisco is extremely varied. Within a few miles of the city are lakes, mountains, seashore, forests and open range land, orchards, vineyards, and rich farm land. Only a few hours distant are Yosemite Valley, Mt. Shasta, Mt. Lassen, Sequoia, and General Grant National Parks, the snow-covered peaks of the High Sierras, Lake Tahoe, Monterey Bay and Peninsula, the Valley of the Moon, the Santa Clara, San Joaquin, and Sacramento Valleys, and many other scenic attractions. Separate booklets describing San Francisco and the surrounding area are available from the chamber of commerce and other local organizations.

PART II

CONFERENCE SITE

1. Headquarters

The headquarters of the Conference have been established in the Civic Opera House and the Veterans' War Memorial Building. These two buildings stand side by side on Van Ness Avenue, facing the City Hall. Built as a twin memorial to the soldiers of the first World War, they form part of a group of municipal, state, and federal office buildings known as the San Francisco Civic Center.

2. Residence Quarters

The hotels in which the Conference participants will be housed are located in the center of the city and on Nob Hill at a distance of about 10 minutes by car from the Conference headquarters. All available space has been reserved for Conference personnel in the following hotels:

|--------------------|-------------------|
| Alexander Hamilton | Palace |
| Bellevue | Plaza |
| California | Sir Francis Drake |
| Clift | Stewart |
| Drake-Wiltshire | St. Francis |
| Fairmont | Whitcomb |
| Mark Hopkins | |

3. Transportation and Communication Between Buildings

Transportation and communication between buildings will be assured by means of a motor pool of cars and busses, a courier service, and a telephone switchboard linking all the delegation offices. Further details regarding these services may be found in part V, Administrative Services of the Secretariat, p. 17.

4. The Opera House

The Civic Opera House will be the seat of the plenary sessions of the Conference and some meetings of the commissions. The building can accommodate some 3,300 persons.

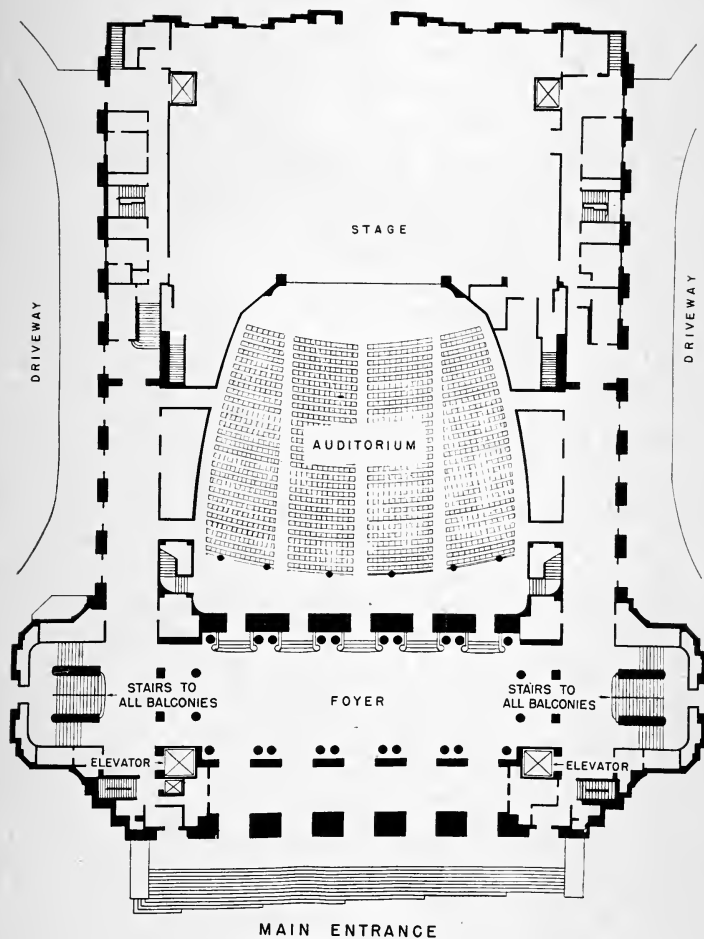

The opening session of the Conference is scheduled for the afternoon of Wednesday, April 25.

The main entrance to the Opera House is on Van Ness Avenue, opposite the City Hall.

Seating arrangements. The orchestra, or ground floor of the Opera House, will be reserved for officials of the delegations, officers of the Secretariat, and distinguished guests. Entry to this section will be had through the doors opening off the main lobby facing the entrance. The boxes opening off the Promenade on the next floor and part or all of the Grand Tier and the upper and lower Dress Circle will be reserved for the operations of newsreel and other photographers, and for radio and press representatives. All remaining space in the upper balconies will be assigned to other delegation and Secretariat staff and the general public.

The public will be admitted within the limits of seating space available. Requests for admission may be made in person, but should preferably be made in writing, several days before the session, to the Public Admissions Officer in the Veterans' Building. Each person applying should supply full identification. Preference will be given to authorized representatives of groups or organizations especially interested in the work of the Conference. Those persons to whom tickets have been assigned will be notified and their tickets will be issued at the ticket office of the Opera House or at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Veterans' Building.

5. The Veterans' War Memorial Building

The committee meeting rooms, offices and working facilities for the press, and offices and service units of the Secretariat are all located in this building, which will serve as the headquarters of the Conference.

In the lobby of the building are the Conference Information Desk, a desk for messenger, courier, and local transportation services, an express office, a telegraph office, a bulletin board for official notices, and a cigarette stand.

The Veterans' Auditorium, seating 700 persons on the main floor and 400 persons in the balcony, is located in the center of the building opposite the main entrance on Van Ness Avenue.

Fourteen committee meeting rooms of various sizes which will be used for business sessions of the Conference are located on the second and third floors of the building.

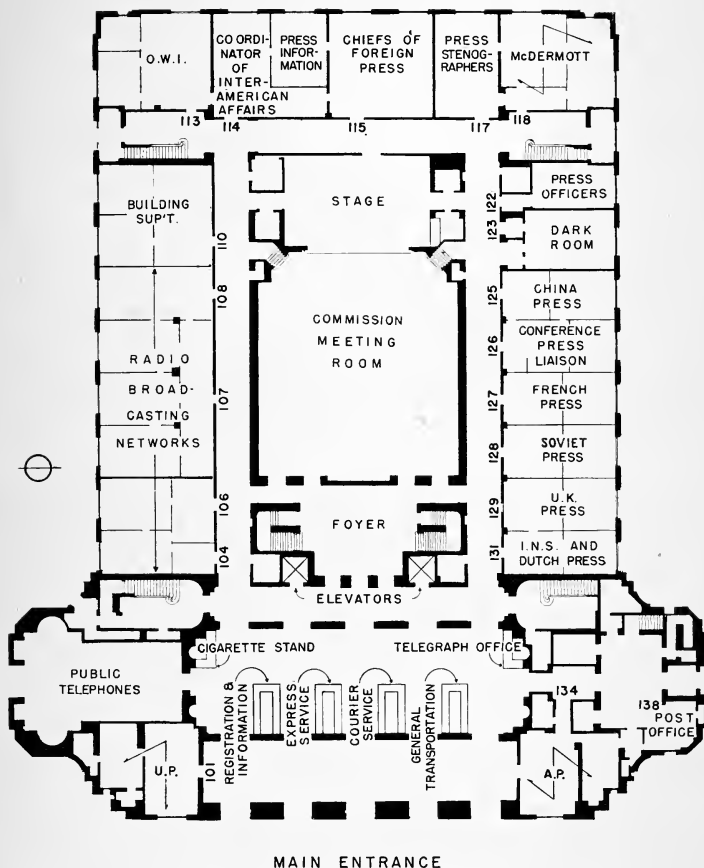

Lounges are located on the second and third floors (rooms 201, 205, 206, and 305).

Facilities for private meetings of delegations and other groups may be reserved by communicating with the Officer in Charge of the Order of the Day (room 460), who will assign some of the smaller meeting rooms when they are not being used for committee sessions.

Offices and service units of the Secretariat occupy the whole of the fourth floor. The offices of the Secretary General and the Deputy Secretary General are located on the third floor, in room 327.

Accommodations for the press are also provided in this building. The offices on each side of the Auditorium on the ground floor are occupied by the various press associations and radio networks. The Chief Press Relations Officer, Mr. Michael J. McDermott, is located in room 118. The press room, telephone stations, and the press wire room are in the basement.

2. Rules of Procedure

The Conference, as an autonomous body, will establish its own organization and adopt its own rules of procedure at one of the early plenary sessions. The provisional rules of procedure, formulated by the United States after discussion with the other sponsoring powers, will guide the Conference until the permanent rules are adopted.

3. The Conference Agenda

The purpose of the Conference, as announced in the invitation to the participating countries, is to discuss the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals and to develop a Charter for a United Nations Organization.

4. Officers of the Conference

In accordance with international practice, the United States, as host Government, designates the Temporary President and furnishes the Secretariat of the Conference. The President of the United States has named Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as Temporary President and Mr. Alger Hiss as Secretary General.

Mr. Stettinius will preside until the Permanent President is elected by the Conference. This election will probably take place at the second or third plenary session. The Conference will also elect the chairmen of commissions and of the various committees.

5. The General Committees

One of the principal items of business at the opening plenary session is the appointment of certain basic committees which are essential to the work of the Conference. The committees set forth in the provisional rules of procedure are: the Steering Committee, Executive Committee, Coordination Committee, and the Credentials Committee.

6. Commissions and Technical Committees

In order to facilitate its deliberations, the Conference will organize itself into several commissions and subordinate technical committees to consider the principal items of the Dumbarton Oaks Proposals, which are:

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Preamble, Purposes, and Principles
Membership and General (including Secretariat and Amendments)

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Structure and Procedures
Political and Security Functions
Economic and Social Cooperation
Trusteeship System

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Structure and Procedures
Peaceful Settlement
Enforcement Arrangements
Regional Arrangements

JUDICIAL ORGANIZATION

International Court of Justice
Legal Problems

7. Conference Procedure

After the commissions and their respective committees have laid down the basic principles on the various subjects of their agenda and have agreed on draft texts incorporating these principles, they will submit their recommendations to the Conference. The latter, sitting in plenary session, will then consider the final text. If the Charter is approved by the Conference, its ratification by a specified number of participating governments will bring the new international Organization into being.

PART IV

SPECIAL INFORMATION FOR THE DELEGATIONS

1. Credentials

Members of delegations who have not previously deposited their credentials at the Department of State in Washington, D. C., are requested to present them to the Office of the Secretary General (room 327, Veterans' Building) as soon as possible after arrival and preferably before the opening session.

2. Assignment of Hotel Rooms and Delegation Offices

Delegations will, so far as possible, be notified by the Secretariat before their arrival in San Francisco of the hotel reservations which have been made for them. Office space for the delegations will be reserved in the same hotels in which their delegates reside. Members of delegations who have been notified of their reservations in advance should proceed directly to their hotels to register. Questions concerning residence or office space which arise after the delegates reach San Francisco should be referred to representatives of the Secretariat who will be at the hotels to receive the delegations, or to the Space and Registration Officer, Mr. Merle K. Wood (room 406, Veterans' Building).

3. Registration

The Conference Registration Office, located in the lobby of the Veterans' Building, will be open beginning at 2 p. m., April 24, to receive the members of delegations and to issue to them Conference admission cards and other official documents and information.

4. List of Delegates

A provisional list of the delegates and their advisers, experts, and secretaries of delegation and other officer personnel will be prepared before the Conference from information given to the Department of State by their governments and will be distributed to the delegations at the time of registration. Delegations are requested to send corrections in the provisional list as soon as possible to the Registration Officer, main lobby, Veterans' Building.

5. Committee Assignments

Delegations are asked to forward to the Office of the Executive Secretary (room 405, Veterans' Building) the names of their members assigned to committees of the Conference as soon as the committees are formed.

6. Languages and Translations

The Secretariat will provide a service for interpretations and translations on the basis of the rules of procedure which are adopted, and, in particular, will be prepared to assist delegations to the extent possible in interpretations and translations into English from other languages.

Delegations wishing further information on the interpretation and translation services available in the Secretariat should consult the Office of the Executive Secretary (room 405, Veterans' Building).

7. Records and Minutes

The records of plenary sessions of the Conference and of the commissions will consist of a verbatim report of the proceedings, including authenticated translations of statements made in languages other than English. Delegates will be asked by the Secretariat to approve as soon as possible after the end of the sessions the texts of their remarks. The approved text of the verbatim report will be distributed to the delegates shortly thereafter. A summary of the proceedings of plenary sessions of the Conference and of the commissions will be published in the Journal on the following day.

The records of committee meetings will be summaries of the discussions and records of decisions reached, not verbatim reports. The records of such meetings, as approved by the respective chairmen, will be distributed on the day following the meetings.

Corrections of the approved record should be forwarded in writing to the secretary of the committee concerned as soon as possible after a meeting.

In the case of subcommittees, normally, only their conclusions will be reported, unless other arrangements are made.

8. Receipt and Distribution of Documents

Delegations desiring to have documents introduced as Conference documents should send their material to the Secretary General, who will act for the President on this matter.

Delegations are asked to inform the Executive Secretary, in advance, of the number of copies of Conference documents they wish to receive. Copies of Conference documents will be available at the Document Distribution Room (room 445, Veterans' Building), and delegations should arrange to have their documents called for at this office.

9. "Journal" of the Conference

The official Journal of the Conference (Mrs. Virginia Angel, Editor, room 449, Veterans' Building) will be issued each morning. It will contain the Order of the Day, listing the scheduled meetings of the Conference and its committees; a list of documents issued the previous day; special announcements by the President or Secretary General; and other information of interest to members of the Conference.

10. "Record" of the Conference

The Record of the Conference will be published each day. It will contain summaries of the proceedings of the committees and their subcommittees during the preceding day.

11. Facilities for Delegations in the Veterans' Building

While space is not available for private offices for delegations in the Veterans' Building, rooms 205, 206, and 305 in that building have been reserved as lounges for the exclusive use of delegation members. A limited amount of office working space and telephone service will be provided in these lounges. Telephone and other messages left at the Information Desk in the lobby will, if possible, be delivered to the delegates in committee meeting rooms and other parts of the Veterans' Building or Opera House. Some of the smaller meeting rooms may be reserved for delegation or group meetings when such rooms are not actually in use for committee sessions.

12. Liaison Officers

The Secretary General will assign to the delegations liaison officers whose duty is to assist the delegations in every way, to facilitate their contacts with various parts of the Secretariat and with public officials, and to advise them on the procedures and details of Conference arrangements. Mr. Warren Kelchner, General Adviser to the Secretary General, will have general supervision over the work of the liaison officers.

Special trains will be run to the east coast at the close of the Conference and announcements as to the time and method of reserving accommodations and securing tickets will be made in due course.

(B) Local Transportation Services

Because of the distance between the various residence hotels and the Conference headquarters it has been found necessary to provide special local transportation and courier facilities for use by the delegation members and other accredited personnel. Telegraph offices have also been located at each of the Conference hotels and messages will be picked up or delivered in the rooms and delegation offices.

Censorship

An agreement has been worked out with the U. S. The offices of the delegations are equipped with furniture, typewriters, and the usual office supplies. Requests for additional supplies should be addressed to the Stock Room (room 447, Veterans' Building), and the supplies will be delivered by courier. All nonexpendable items must be charged to some responsible person and returned at the close of the Conference.

17. First Aid and Medical Care

A first-aid post in charge of a registered nurse has been set up in room 453 of the Veterans' Building, and emergency medical facilities are available in the basement of the Opera House, where a doctor and registered nurse will be on duty or on call at all times. This service will be free to all persons officially connected with the Conference.

Arrangements are being made with local physicians and hospitals for medical and surgical care in case of serious illness. Inquiries concerning medical facilities in the city should be made of the doctor in charge of the first-aid room in the Opera House.

The services of the Secretariat are also available to facilitate travel reservations to and from the west coast and to secure hotel reservations in San Francisco for such representatives.

1. Method of Accrediting

The names of persons who wish to attend the Conference must be certified to Mr. McDermott, the Chief Press Relations Officer, by the head of the newspaper or agency making the request. These names are then submitted to the Standing Committee of Correspondents of the House and Senate Press Galleries, the Periodical Press Gallery, the Radio Gallery, or the White House Photographers' Association.
